Interviewees :	Philip Lewis, Class Movies

Whitelock says most people would have old school photographs. She says there is a new take on the school photograph, the class movie. She is joined by Philip Lewis to discuss the movies, saying they are a video snapshot allowing parents to see a week-in-the-life of the class. Lewis says the program was developed with teachers and the film industry. He says teachers are taught to how best to shoot the films. He says the end product is on DVD and includes music and comments from the children. He describes how he came to develop the project. He says the movies aim to show the spirit of each child in the class.
